

We are looking for veterinarians (in Northern Germany)

for our modernly equipped livestock practice with focus on farms for dairy cattle and calf rearing operations. We also have a larger pig division.

We are a team of 12 veterinarians at two locations in Northern Germany (close to Hamburg): in 21683 Stade and in 21261 Welle. Our offer is complemented by an agricultural engineer, a specialist who works with our modern professional hoof care stand, and a laboratory. We work and collaborate in our team and with our clients in a very trust-based environment which is of great importance to us.

We are looking for both, career starters and veterinarians with experience, who are interested in a career in Germany – either to join our team in a permanent role or to join us for an internship. We are looking for team vets that are motivated, collaborative, open-minded, and passionate to work with animals and their holders.

In our team, you will be working on interesting, multifaceted curative activities on patients and advising our customers on all questions relating to cattle health and dairy farming. We will take time for your individual onboarding and continuous development. As you deepen your knowledge and experience in our team, there is also the opportunity to grow with us the breadth and depth of what we are doing as a team together.

We offer:

- A very nice working atmosphere and colleagues
- Work at a high medical level
- Individual onboarding according to level of knowledge and skills
- Support for further training
- Very good salary
- Defined schedule for late and weekend shifts
- Digital timekeeping and fair compensation of overtime
- Flexibility e.g. accommodating for specific individual needs (e.g. working hours)

In order to be officially allowed to work as a vet in Germany, language skills at B2 level are required in addition to the approbation for veterinary medicine. If your language skills don't yet meet B2, you can still get a temporary work permit to improve your German while already working here. You would then need to take the language test during / parallel to the work as a vet in Germany.

We can also organize a short-term accommodation (e.g., for the duration of an internship or for your first weeks/months here in Germany).

If you haven't completed your studies yet and choose for an internship, we also offer scholarships in the form of study support and support for language courses as preparation (conditional to the joining our team afterwards).

We look forward to your application in German or English. Please send to:
info@tierarzt-dr-fietze.de or via Whatsapp/cell: +4915124050715